H. RES.

Expressing the sense of the House of Representatives regarding President Donald J. Trump's remarks about Haiti, El Salvador, and African Nations.

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Mr. RICHMOND (for himself and Mr. NADLER) submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on

RESOLUTION

Expressing the sense of the House of Representatives regarding President Donald J. Trump's remarks about Haiti, El Salvador, and African Nations.

Whereas, on January 11, 2018, President Trump met with several Members of Congress in the White House to discuss a proposed bipartisan immigration compromise which would have, among other things, provided for permanent protection to immigrants from Haiti, El Salvador, and other countries that have recently lost Temporary Protected Status designation;

Whereas according to first-hand participants and several people briefed on the meeting, when the issue of Temporary

Protected Status came up, President Trump stated, “Haitians, why do we need more Haitians? Take them out.”;

Whereas in a separate part of the discussion, referencing other components of the proposal, President Trump referred to African nations as “shithole countries” or “shithouse countries”;

Whereas President Trump suggested that the United States should instead allow immigration by more people from countries like Norway;

Whereas after the President’s remarks were made public, the White House made no initial effort to deny their accuracy, White House staffers predicted that the President’s “shithole” remark would “resonate with his base”, and conservative radio host Erick Erickson tweeted that President “Trump himself was calling friends to brag about [using vulgar words such as ‘shithole’ or ‘shithouse’] afterwards. I spoke to one of those friends. The President thought it would play well with the base.”;

Whereas the Daily Stormer, a notorious neo-Nazi website, welcomed President Trump’s comments as being “encouraging and refreshing, as it indicates Trump is more or less on the same page with us with regards to race and immigration.”;

Whereas President Trump’s remarks have been confirmed by numerous direct and indirect sources, including—

(1) Senator Dick Durbin, a participant in the January 11 meeting at the White House, who stated that the President had made comments “which were hate-filled, vile, and racist”, and that “you’ve seen the comments in the press. I’ve not read one of them that’s inaccurate. .

. He said those hate-filled things, and he said them repeatedly” and confirmed that President Trump referred to African nations as “shitholes not just once, but repeatedly”;

(2) Senator Lindsay Graham, another participant in the January 11 meeting who admonished President Trump for his choice of words during the meeting, telling the President, “America is an idea, not a race”; and informed Senator Tim Scott that the reported comments by the media are “basically accurate”; and

(3) Senator Jeff Flake, who said that he had heard about President Trump’s comments from participants in the meeting and stated “they said those words were used before those words went public”;

Whereas two other participants in the January 11 meeting, Senator Tom Cotton and David Perdue, issued a statement saying “we do not recall the President saying these comments specifically,” in subsequent media appearances they sought to deny that President Trump used the term “shithole,” and a senior Republican source subsequently told CNN that “instead of hearing the President say ‘shithole’, some Republicans heard Trump say ‘shithouse’.”;

Whereas these statements by President Trump have been decried by many in the international community, including—

(1) a United Nations human rights spokesman who said the only word to describe President Trump’s comment is “racist”, and “you cannot dismiss entire countries and continents as ‘shitholes’, whose entire populations, who are not white, are therefore not welcome”;

(2) an African Union spokesperson, speaking for the organization that represents all 55 nations of the African continent, said “considering the historical reality of how many Africans arrived in the U.S. during the Atlantic slave trade, this flies in the face of all accepted behavior and practice”;

(3) the President of Haiti, when speaking at a ceremony commemorating the eighth anniversary of the devastating Haitian earthquake, who stated, “the Haitian government condemns in the strongest terms these abhorrent and obnoxious remarks”;

(4) El Salvador, which sent a formal letter of protest;

(5) the President of Senegal, who stated, “I am shocked by President Trump’s words on Haiti and Africa. I reject them and condemn them vigorously”;

(6) the Botswana Government, which issued a statement describing the remarks as “highly irresponsible, reprehensible, and racist”; and

(7) the South African Government, which issued a diplomatic protest to the United States; and

Whereas, as a result of these concerns, United States diplomats in Haiti and other countries have been called by their host countries to explain the President’s remarks: Now, therefore, be it

1 Resolved, That the House of Representatives does
2 hereby—

3 (1) publicly state our support and respect for
4 Haiti, El Salvador, and African nations;

5 (2) censure and condemn President Donald
6 Trump for his statements at the January 11, 2018,

1 White House meeting, which are hateful, discrimina-
2 tory, and racist, and cannot and should not be the
3 basis of any American policy, including immigration
4 policy; and

5 (3) call on President Trump to retract and
6 apologize for these hateful, discriminatory, and rac-
7 ist remarks and any offense they have caused.
